FROM THE PRESIDENT'S DESK

Congratulations to the Class of 2014!

To tackle the challenges of tomorrow, we must start laying the groundwork today. As President, I have dedicated myself to improving every aspect of the institution and I am pleased to report that we are already making great strides.

Maritime industry has undergone remarkable changes over the years. The industry, of course, continues to change and progress, and as the shipbuilding boom continues, our workload will only grow. As the maritime industry becomes increasingly globalized, we must work to ensure that we can offer the same high quality service anywhere in the world. As demands for new bylaws and environmentally friendly technology intensify, we must facilitate to drive the rapidity of new technology development, and as the dearth of skilled workers continues, we ought to take a superior role in education and training.

This focus on development is perceptible not only in our approach to tomorrow's challenges, but in every facet of the society's work, from the reliability and accuracy of our assessments to the quality of our periodicals. It makes me quite proud to say that this commitment to quality is equally reflected in the newsletter you hold in your hands today. With that said, I hope you thoroughly enjoy reading this edition of AMET Waves.

Thank you all for a job well done and wishing you all a Happy Independence Day!

FROM THE VICE-CHANCELLOR'S DESK

Transformation is currently underway in the Indian Higher Education Sector. Characteristics and circumstances for learners are changing. New demands are being made of them in terms of their knowledge skills and competencies. Greater Diversity is manifested in relationship between learners and educational providers. Today's networked society offers a marked increase in opportunities for interpersonal communication and access to digital resources.

Col. Dr. G. Thiruvassagam
Vice-Chancellor

Thanks to our President Dr. J. Ramachandran and members of the management of AMET University, crores worth of investment has been made in establishing the University Library which is well equipped with around 40,000 Books, 220 National and International Journals, besides thousands of online Journals and equipments for providing technology oriented study materials meant for Faculty and students. It includes Digital Library, 'e' resource learning centre, Multimedia centre, exclusive internet centre, which is functioning from 8AM to 9PM. I would be much happy, if these facilities will be used optimally by the Faculty and Students. Newly created such infrastructure would be of great help to the Research Scholars of our University as well.

At this junction, I welcome the Fresher's to our campus and I wish them success in their dreams to become potential resource in the field of Maritime Sector.
